

Revising a Draft

After you organize your ideas, you probably still will to make some corrections. It's best to let someone else look at your writing, to catch as many grammar and punctuation errors as possible. Another person still might give you some suggestions about vocabulary, or even ideas.

What corrections would you make to this draft? Mark them yourself.

My Grandmother (Draft #2)

is

My grandmother kind and generous. She never mad at us.

^

She always makes people feel good. One time I picked all the roses in her garden. She not even mad then. She made me feel good. Thanked me for the beautiful bouquet. Grandmother gives food to poor people. She never makes them feel bad about taking it. Makes people feel good, just as she made me feel good when I picked all the roses. Grandmother always forgive. Forgiving heart.
